The author is not permitted to withdraw submitted manuscripts. This is because withdrawal is a waste of valuable resources of time processing a submitted manuscript, money and work invested by the publisher, editors and reviewers.

However, manuscript withdrawal is permitted within two weeks of the date it was initially submitted to the journal, or prior to the peer-review processes whichever is earlier. Authors may write to the Editor requesting a withdrawal of a manuscript previously submitted for intended publication in the Jurnal Ekonomi Manajemen Teknologi (EMT) KITA.

If an author requests withdrawal of his/her manuscript while the manuscript is still in the peer-review process, the journal has the right to reject the paper without taking into account the status of the reviewer's evaluation. The author and his/her affiliation will be blacklisted for future publication in this journal. Further, his/her previously published articles will be removed from the online system.

Abstract

The abstract consists of not more than 200 words, describing the phenomenon being studied (one or two sentences, maximum 10 [ten] words), the purpose of study, research methodology, and general findings. The abstract should be written in two languages, Indonesian and English, and include five keywords.

Introduction (include research objective, theoretical framework, and hypothesis development if available)

This section describes three main components. First, it describes the phenomenon being studied. Secondly, the author explains the relationship between phenomenon and existing theories (at least one of the journals cited should be less than five years old); and finally describes the purpose of the study. Furthermore this section also contains previous theories, both from primary reference (grand theory) and journal articles (including at least one journal published in the last ten years). This section also discusses arguments on the relationship between the variables being studied and ends with the hypothesis depicting the relationships of the variables (there should be some argument for each hypothesis).

For an exploratory study, this section should consist of previous theories underlying the Research Question. (Please provide strong argument(s) that reference variable(s) or explanation(s) as to why research will fill the gap from the literature.

Research Methodology

This section consists of approaches taken by the author, whether qualitative or quantitative approach. This section also includes a sample description (respondent/case profile), sampling method, sampling size, error level, data collection method, variable operationalization, and analysis method.

Results and Discussion

This section consists of the results of validity and reliability tests and analysis of the results. Furthermore this section discusses the results of the current study and how they relate to the hypothesis presented. The discussion section also explains possible reasons for why a certain hypothesis is rejected or accepted and how they relate to previous research. Furthermore, the author should show how the current result supports or contradicts previous studies, limitation of the study, and implication of the study (both managerial and scientific implications). This section also discusses the recommendation(s) for future research based on the limitation of the study.

Conclusion

This section provides a brief explanation of the study and the impact of the study.

References

This section consists of all references used in the article. The number of references should be no less than 15 references, where the number of journal articles (includes at least one journal article published within the last ten years) should exceed the number of textbooks. Follow the author instructions in the Harvard style.
